Over the last decade as the importance of vocational qualifications has been firmly established, the system has become increasingly complex and hard to grasp. Now in its sixth edition, this popular and accessible reference book provides up-to-date information on over 3500 vocational qualifications in the UK. Divided into five parts, the first clarifies the role of the accrediting and major awarding bodies and explains the main types of vocational qualifications available. A directory then lists over 3500 vocational qualifications, classified by professional and career area, giving details of type of qualification, title, level, awarding body and, where possible, the course code and content. The third section comprises a glossary of acronyms used, together with a comprehensive list of awarding bodies, industry lead bodies, professional institutes and associations, with their contact details. Section four is a directory of colleges offering vocational qualifications in the UK, arranged alphabetically by area. Finally, section five is an index of all qualifications, listed alphabetically by title.

Urban Policy and Practice is a practical and critical guide to urban policy in contemporary Britain. The book covers a range of topics including: * Quality and consumerism in the public sector * Community development * Public Health * Environmental issues * Local intervention in the creation of skills and jobs Case studies are drawn from housing, planning, the social services, economic development, and local government finance. As the European Union grows together we are faced with an increasing number of European surveys and statistics that rely on national instruments or questionnaires. We lack valid instruments with functional equivalence that allow international comparative analysis. This problem is especially important in the case of demographic and socio-economic variables. The usual practice in comparative social research is to work with national questionnaires and classifications thereby making meaningful comparisons questionable. To overcome these problems this book offers rules of comparison, tested instruments and examples for the measurements of basic demographic and socio-economic variables. The book consists of five parts and a concluding chapter. Part 1 covers general problems and presents solutions for the harmonisation of data from different national and/or cultural contexts. In the second part EUROSTAT and ESOMAR present their established standard instruments. Tested instruments each covering one variable (i.e. occupation, education) are presented in the third part. The fourth part again includes suggested tools for the harmonisation of single variables for which standardised instruments are not yet available (i.e. age, religion, ethnicity, household, family, income). The last part presents selected empirical analyses demonstrating the use and fruitfulness of instruments presented before. This book is mainly written for two groups. First, researchers and practitioners involved in comparative research in Europe. Second, researchers working with data of the statistical offices of European countries and data from institutions of the European Union.

What is the difference between an academic and professional qualification? Who should get a professional qualification? Did you know that some professions can not be legally practised with a degree alone? Why get a UK qualification? Is it expensive to gain a British qualification? What is a chartered institute or society, and is it better than a non-chartered body? What is the difference between a professional body and a trade union? These are all questions answered in this book which is designed to help individuals choose a career path and the right professional organisation. In today's world it isn't enough to have a qualification, you need to be able to meet with peers and use the valuable networks that are already in place to foster your profession. Your Professional Qualification provides a comprehensive survey of the qualifications available in the UK along with guidance on where they lead, entry requirements, where to apply and where to study. Derived from the vast and authoritative British Qualifications database, this important publication provides the first easily accessible guide to qualifications and how to get them in the UK. Built around a comprehensive directory of professional qualifying bodies each professional area is described in depth and its qualifications identified and explained. The book is supported by a simple website, which ensures purchasers of the book are kept up-to-speed with new developments.

First published in 1998, this seventh volume of Social Attitudes in Northern Ireland reports the main findings of the Northern Ireland Social Attitudes survey carried out in 1996. In this survey, views were obtained on community relations in Northern Ireland; the growth of home ownership; attitudes to the countryside; the role of government in Northern Ireland; attitudes to the National Health Service; attitudes to the environment and belief and trust in the political process. The various chapters provide a measure of the feelings, attitudes and beliefs of the people of Northern Ireland on a wide range of matters. Many of the chapters chart trends from the early 1990s and analyse changes in attitudes over the period.

This book is a must have for those estate agents who want to work more effectively in order to grow their business and profits. With 12,000 separately owned estate agencies in the UK this book illustrates how new technology and working practices can revolutionise the industry. Technology can help to improve the competitiveness and sometimes-tarnished image of estate agents in the eyes of the general public. The book contains case studies from international markets and shows how competitive the industry is and how each competitor needs to adopt new approaches to outwit rivals – and to reassure an increasingly sceptical public that agents are worth using, add value and earn their commission.

An Introduction to Travel and Tourism is a new activity-based text to cover the GCSE in Travel and Tourism. der unsere Bildungspolitik augenblicklich überall diskutiert wird und in weitreichenden Veränderungen unseres Bildungswesens zum Ausdruck kommt. Während hierzulande gegenwärtig ein novelliertes Hochschulrahmengesetz auf dem Prüfstand steht und zuletzt in schöner Regelmäßigkeit neue Berufsbilder geschaffen wurden, scheinen Reformen im Bildungsbereich vor dem Hintergrund eines immer enger zusammenwachsenden Europas auch in unseren europäischen Partnerländern als unausweichlich erkannt worden zu sein. Wie aber stellt sich die Situation in einer traditionell eher konservativen Bildungslandschaft wie England tatsächlich dar? Um beantworten zu können ob, und in welchem Umfang bereits Erneuerungsprozesse stattgefunden haben, sollen im folgenden die Entwicklungen im englischen Bildungswesen von den Anfängen bis zum gegenwärtigen Zeitpunkt untersucht, und nachgezeichnet werden. Bewegte unseren Nachbarn im abgelaufenen Jahr emotional zwar wohl in erster Linie der überraschende Tod von Prinzessin Diana, so war innenpolitisch der überzeugende Wahlsieg der Labour Party und die damit verbundenen Hoffnungen auf Veränderungen - insbesondere auch im Bildungsbereich - das beherrschende Thema der englischen Öffentlichkeit. Die Tatsache, daß ich neben meinem sechsmonatigen Auslandsstudium zusätzlich die Möglichkeit erhielt, während dieser Zeit ein allgemeines Schulpraktikum an einer englischen Gesamtschule zu absolvieren, ermöglichte mir ebenso Einblicke in die dortige Bildungspolitik, wie meine anschließende einjährige Tätigkeit als Assistant Teacher an einem englischen College. Dieser Umstand soll nachfolgend zum Anlaß genommen werden, daß englische Bildungswesen im Rahmen dieser Arbeit einmal intensiv zu studieren. Gang der Untersuchung: Zunächst sollen dabei die Rahmenbedingungen aufgezeigt werden, unter denen in England Bildung allgemein und berufliche Bildung im Besonderen stattfinden. Anfangs wird deshalb auf historische Entwicklungen und gesetzliche Grundlagen des englischen Bildungswesens einzugehen sein (Kapitel 2), bevor die Frage nach Zuständigkeiten und Trägern im allgemeinen und beruflichen Bildungsbereich zu erörtern ist (Kapitel 3). Daran anschließend sollen der Aufbau und die Organisation des [...]

The ageing of the world's populations, particularly in Western developed countries, is a well-documented phenomenon; and despite many positive images of later life, in the media and public discourse later life is frequently depicted as a time of inevitable physical and cognitive decline. Against this background, Heinrichsmeier presents the results of her two-year sociolinguistic study examining how a group of older women of different ages negotiated their way through their own and others' expectations of ageing and constructed different kinds of older – and other – identities for themselves. Through vivid and nuanced analysis of their chat and practices in a small village hair salon, Heinrichsmeier reveals these women's subtle and skilful manipulation of stereotypes of ageing and the impact of the evolving talk on their identity constructions. Her study, which provides numerous short extracts of talk in both the hair salon and interview along with more detailed case studies, highlights the importance of such apparently 'trivial' sites – for both studying older people's identity work and as loci for positive identity constructions and well-being in later life. This book will be of particular interest to graduate students and scholars working in sociolinguistics, discourse analysis, conversation analysis, and gerontological studies, as well as those interested in approaches integrating ethnography and language.
