At some point in your life, you probably will have some money saved up and will start thinking, "I probably should invest this into something." You can't live in this modern age and be deaf to the oft-repeated advice of the way that leads to financial freedom. Save and Invest. To be honest, that advice is solid. If you are going to be free financially, and free early, you are going to have to diversify your income, or at least find a way of using money to make more money. Here's what I mean. If you dug into the ground and hid $1000 way back in 1960, and then dug it up in 2016, you'd have lost about $7,000. Why? The answer is inflation. Generally, money loses value the longer it is kept. What does this mean for you? It means that you'll need more money in the future than you'll need today, even if your expenses do not increase. The rate at which your money loses value depends on the inflation rate, and since 2000, the inflation rate annually is between 1% and 4%. That means that your money is losing value by about 1% to 4% every year. This is the issue with many 'safe' investment options. The interest rate will probably earn you enough for your money to retain the same value. In 2018, for instance, the inflation rate in the United States was 2.4%, and the best 'safe' investment you'd probably have found online was a 6-year CD from a commercial bank, American Bank who was offering 2.7% per year. Plus, there's no assurance that the inflation rate wouldn't have increased to say 3% or even more. Look at it this way, if you've saved up enough money to buy a Toyota, then keep the money under your mattress for about 20 or 30 years, then when you take it out, it'll probably be enough to buy a bicycle. Invest in the stock market, however, and you can probably get a Maserati or something fancier. That is why investing is a no-brainer. While saving is a good strategy for managing your money in the short-term, you need a plan for how you'll invest in the long term. Here's a bit of the list of topics covered: - The basics of stock trading - Why you should prioritize trading in stock - The best practices that will help you get started and excel as a stock trader to a level where you have a high degree of confidence whenever making a trade - Things you should not do while day trading stock - How to practice sufficiently when trading stock to improve your craft in everything relating to stock, including setting stop losses, take profits and others - Basic business strategies that will propel you to rapid success - How to understand majors and exotics like the back of your hand - Proper money management - The psychology or mindset you need to have to succeed in stock trading Would You Like To Know More? You're About To Discover The #1 Secret To Generate Passive Income Streams With This Step-By-Step Tutorial And Proven Business Models, Ideas A passive income is any income you earn without actively engaging in work-related activities. However, a passive income is still work. A major misconception on the subject is that you can set up a passive income today and start making money on autopilot tomorrow. That rarely happens. Most passive income streams, especially those whose nature concentrates on the online space, require that you put in the work now so that later, you may stop working full time. That does not mean you will not work at all; you will. All worthwhile passive income streams require some form of maintenance. With that said, it's easy to understand why many people believe that a passive income means no work at all: because well set up passive income streams can require as little as a few hours of maintenance work per week or month to continue generating revenue. Take the example of a well set up blog. If you put in the time now into creating great, search engine friendly, evergreen content-say about 100-200 pieces of genuinely good and valuable content which would take a year of more-in a year or two, you can stop actively working on the website or blog every day. You can monetize the traffic coming to the website through various strategies such as affiliate marketing and advertising so that you can generate an income even as you post once or twice per week-some blogs continue to earn a passive income each month even without any maintenance work. As you can see from the above, setting up an online passive income does not mean not working; it simply means putting in the work upfront so that later, you can work less and still generate an income. This passive income definition is the one we shall use as we work through the steps in this guide. This guide shall discuss, in a systematic manner, proven business models and ideas that when well implemented, shall help you create multiple streams of online passive income. Let's begin. Here's Just A Small Preview Of What You'll Learn...
